REPORTS.

The following interesting information concerning the Lark has been unavoidably kept out up till the present time.

The Lark, Shields, from Bangkok left the bar at 11 A.M. 9th July. Had a rough passage, heavy squalls in the gulf of Siam, off Pulo Obey and Condore. She encountered many severe squalls, one of the latter turning into a heavy gale, which with thick weather and darkness compelled her to heave to about 30 miles S. W. of PuloCeicer de Mer for 6 hours waiting to see a passage; clearing as it were for a moment saw the land & put out into the China sea between the above Island & Yoosun shoal; there she had one days moderate weather, since then the Barometer was going down hourly. Expecting a typhoon made everything snug & waited to see what was to come next making mean while her best for Hongkong. On the 16th. South of the Paracels the wind changed from S. W. to West, northerly; she was run East under foresail & close reefed main sail from Noon till 7 P.M. when the Barometer, going down all the time, became stationary; there was a tremendous sea on & blowing very hard; having then crossed the Southern portion of the Cyclone to the Ed. while the meteor was supposed to move westward,—it must have been of large diameter. At 8 P.M. wind shifted to W. S. W. Reef. on another two hours East—& then hauled up gradually towards course on the S. Ed. quadrant of the gale, the sea very high and irregular, torrents of rain, the sea breaking over her, constantly filling her decks with water. She proved herself a fine sea boat not taking any seas over aft but rising to every one, she filled her decks over the bulwarks. She lost 6 hoops being hove-too off the Holland bank and later a greater number scudding out of the Typhoon. At 4 P.M. found the barometer going down again, ran away from the Cyclone, Ed. for another 3 hours during which time there was tremendous lightning in the track of the receding gale, then steered for Hongkong; the following day passed through a most turbulent district where the vessel rolling both gunwales in the water, and kept the decks constantly full. If any vessels were to the N. Wd. they must have had the Typhoon very severe. Next day found the Lark had been set by the storm-wave alone 120 m. to S. E. & 40 m. Nd. Probably the detention of 6 hours off the Holland bank prevented the Lark from getting in front of the Typhoon with winds from N. W. & N. On the 17 & 18 the vessel suffered more by the irregular sea, rolling gunwales under, in 24 hours than she would have down in a whole year under ordinary circumstance, suffering in hull rigging, spars and sails especially in sail which had to be carried to get out of it. The Meteor must have been of large Diameter, by the time it took to get out of it on the extreme Sn. verge; it moved but very slowly westward, is likewise probable, but must have been very severe near the centre by its strength while passing over the Lark and the immense sea that got up. The truth of the theory of the "Law of Storms" was shown in a beautiful manner, when the "Lark" had passed through a chord on the S.n. verge of the Meteor, the glass became stationary but running Ed. (for all 10 hs.) the Bar. went up and the vessel was hauled up gradually to her Northward course, but after running for 4 hours E. N. Ed. the Bar. indicated that she was getting too close to the Eastern portion of the Cyclone warning her off as it were; she was accordingly run East again for 3 hours more, where judging the meteor sufficiently distant kept our course again.

The "Lark" made the Grand Ladrone on the 20th instant, the wind from the N. E. and a quickly falling Barometer the sails had to be reduced to close reefed main topsail and foresail; the sea rose quickly and it began to blow hard, the heavy sea rolling inboard over her bulwarks constantly, and filling the decks. After a while on the 21st. the wind shifted to East and later to S. E. fearing that being close to the land she might be thrown into the bight between the Ladrones and St. Johns her head was kept to the Southward with the above sail, quite as much as she could carry in a very heavy seaway, next day it was found she had drifted to the Mandarins can and since the weather moderated she has had to contend with nothing but easterly winds, thus she encountered two heavy gales on her passage, one of which was on the Southern and the second on the Northern verge of the centre, she lost no spars but split several staysails. After the first gale and running out of her course Ed. for 13 hours she would have got into Hkg on the 20th inst. only for the second gale that drifted her to the westward and the easterly winds that followed. On her arrival off the Ladrones again there was not a fishing boat or a pilot boat to be seen anywhere; she got a pilot when to the Northward of Linting in sight of Hongkong on the 24th. The day before she was in company with several vessels, one of which had lost her spars aft—evidently going to Macao.

E. H. POLLARD, Esq.

The Scheme of a Local Bank for this Colony with Branches at the most important places in China, has been in contemplation for a very long period.

The local and foreign trade in Hongkong and at the open ports in China and Japan has increased so rapidly within the last few years that additional Banking facilities are felt to be required.

The Banks now in China being only branches of Corporations, whose head quarters are in England or India, and which were formed chiefly with the view of carrying on exchange operations between those countries and China, are scarcely in a position to deal satisfactorily with the local trade which has become so much more extensive and varied than in former years.

This deficiency the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Company will supply, and will in fact assume the same position with relation to this Colony as the Presidency Banks in India, or the Banks of Australia in their respective localities.

The Establishment of a Mint in Hongkong, providing an adequate supply of proper currency, will render a local Banking medium essential to carry out its operations, and the almost certain disappearance of the existing Compradore system (so far as money is concerned), will also ensure Banks becoming in course of time the exclusive medium for the transaction of the monetary operations connected with trade.

For the anticipated success of this enterprise there are therefore ample grounds; and the great prosperity which has attended the working of other local associations in China clearly shews that the largest profits are obtained by those Public Companies which possess an interested local body of Proprietors or Shareholders whose support naturally forms a chief element of remunerative success.

The Bank will commence operations simultaneously in Hongkong and Shanghai and as the importance of its business at the latter place must be very great, it is intended to establish a local Board of Directors there for more effectually meeting the work. As circumstances render it advisable the Bank will establish Branches at other places.

In the distribution of Shares Hongkong and Shanghai will equally participate. Shares will also be reserved for the other ports in China and Japan and for persons residing elsewhere, who are directly interested in the China Trade.

Applications for Shares must be addressed until further notice, to the Provisional Committee, care of MESSRS. DENT & CO.

HONGKONG, 2ND AUGUST, 1864.

The Original Christy's Minstrels.

This corps of clever musicians gave their third concert last night, and notwithstanding the unfavourable weather the House was very good. In noticing this evening's entertainment it should be observed that it is one of those admirable combinations of good music and comic acting of a peculiar character which must be witnessed to be justly appreciated. The Part songs were well rendered and the Quartette of Colias Arbour was rapturously applauded, Mr. Collins rich alto voice coming in sweetly and effectively. He is by far the most versatile artist we have seen in Hongkong. What shall we say of Brown, Jos Brown, Hard headed Brown. His "Happy meals, Tom," was a fine piece of acting and the satiatory part of the character was a treat much enjoyed. They play again on Thursday under the patronage of His Excellency the Governor.

Mr. Thorne's Company perform too fine pieces to-morrow night.

Having been favoured with some jottings from Bangkok, which we deem very interesting, we proceed to arrange them in a tangible form in order that they may be presented to our readers in the familiar manner of one of our own leading articles.

An English newspaper is about to be started at Bangkok, to be published weekly and to be edited by a Mr. Fergusson, who is well and favorably known from his long connection with the Singapore Press. It was intended that it should make its first appearance early in July, and that the subscription could be $24 per annum. It will be more of a market report than a newspaper, but in a place with such a dearth of news, will doubtless cover all the ground.

The Siamese nobles are pleased at the idea, but express a little apprehension lest their manners and customs should be attacked or held up to ridicule. Not so however the British officials;—in the absence of the Consul, Sir R. Schoubers, Mr. Thos. G. Knox an ex-Lieutenant in H.M. 99th regiment, and now holding the appointment of interpreter to the Bangkok Consulate, is nominated Vice Consul. This gentleman, like his prototype Mr. T. F. Wade, is decidedly averse to the press as an institution. He however lacks Mr. Wade's circumspection and slyness, and without first attempting to subsidise "the nuisance," has declared war against it by vowing that it shall not have access to his Court. "How we apples do swim" to be sure.

The native merchants desire an issue in Siamese, which suggestion may possibly be found worthy of adoption.

Like all small communities, that of Bangkok is much divided by a variety of schisms, which at a distance appear trifling. One party appear as subservient to the powers that be, as the Clown of the circus is to the master of the ring. The other party are somewhat radical in their ideas, and place a value on intelligence and integrity from the respect those qualities are entitled to. This latter party it is, we presume, which has started the paper above alluded to.

As for Court News—the only items we see refer to the visit of the King to the city of Agutthia, to pay his obeisance to the white Elephant; and the intended departure of the second King to the gulf ports and Singapore.

The revenues of Siam are said to amount to a sum equal to five millions sterling per annum. About five hundred thousand pounds of this sum is expended in nominal salaries to officials, and in repairs to and constructions of Buddhist temples. The rest is hoarded, and as the hoarding has been going on for about eight years, the result is, if our data be correct, that there must be between thirty five and forty millions pounds sterling in the Royal vaults. That there is an enormous sum thus hoarded there can be no manner of doubt, and that the bulk is in silver is equally certain. The London and China bankers should see as to this subject, because it is clear that a scarcity of rice in China, and the consequent demand for the article at Bangkok should form a strong ingredient in their exchange calculations.

We should suppose that the object of the King of Siam in thus hoarding his revenue, is to enable him to solve any European difficulty by means of bribes. The only nations which the King of Siam has to fear are France and England, but especially the former. A million sterling distributed among the Emperor's relatives, viz: Persigny, Morny, and Walewski would go a long way to avert a catastrophe, and to calm the ambitious designs of le grand nation. It is said the diplomacy of the Mexican war may be traced to the Almonte bonds, which the Emperor's relatives became possessed of in a very unaccountable manner. If this rumor be true, the Emperor's relatives will are made a fine operation out of it.

The last Japan and Siam embassies to Paris were rather mysterious affairs. Does not this widen of ours clear up some of the mystery? That is the wont of Louis Napoleon. He is beset with a set of scamps, and does not appear to have an honest man near him.

However—to return to Siam. A Siamese ship of war yclept the Illustrious Conqueror lately went to scour the gulf in search of a worthy named Hopkins, who, it is alleged, has been doing a considerable stroke of piracy in those waters. It is reported that he has eased eighteen Malay prahus of their cargoes of pepper: should this really be the case, it is more than probable that he has taken advantage of the fair monsoon and has made some China port for the purpose of disposing of his ill gotten booty. His craft is a foreign and he is known to have been formerly engaged in the Foochow and Ningpo convoy trade, a pretty good school wherein to learn the noble art of piracy.

The Siamese merchant fleet now numbers ninety-seven vessels, representing forty five to fifty thousand tons. The majority of these are strong insurable sea-going craft, capable of making the passage to China against the monsoon, so that a good portion of the carrying trade to China is in native hands.

The King has imported the services of an European compositor to superintend his Royal printing office, but as the Siamese type is nearly all in pie and as the new man is a novice in the language and character, he will have a "hard row to hoe," as the Yankees say.

Mr. Adamson of this port, manager of the Borneo Company Limited, has been appointed Siamese Consul at Hongkong. His fees are stated to be regulated at $15 for shipping and clearing each vessel, and $3 for entering or discharging each seaman. This scale of fees is considered handsome, and it is computed that it will yield an income of $5000 per annum.

The following clever lampoon was lately posted on the wall of the Governor's Yamun, Canton. It has caused some fear at Canton and is deemed a dead hit. It of course has reference to the present extortionate practices of the Provincial authorities. A large reward has been offered for the discovery of the author.

人肉食酒只剩皮骨存恩愛滔此之毛

地皮剝盡惟存恩愛滔此之爪

The people's flesh is eaten (up) and what is left is but the dry grass of the rivers Kien, Kiu, Chan, and Che.

The ground is thoroughly scraped and what is left is but the hoofs of a tiger, leopard, dog, or sheep skin.

The following explanatory remarks are requisite to enable our readers to comprehend the bit of the lampoon. The Governor's surname is Kwah (郭) when (单) Keh is added to this name it means a dressed hide. The double entendre then becomes apparent.

Mau (毛) is the surname of the Governor General and means feather, down &c; but with the radical (羔) above it refers to the glossy delicate grass which grows on the banks of the above named rivers. In both instances the respective pronunciation of the characters is identical whether with or without the radical.

The moral adduced may be thus expressed. "The people are plundered and fleeced, and their rulers are as much without feeling as "a dressed hide, and as useless as the grass on "the rivers' banks."

INTIMATIONS.

NEW MEDICINE

THE GREATEST SUCCESS OF THE AGE!!!

NO MORE COD LIVER OIL. SYRUP OF IODIZED HORSE-RADISH of GRIMAULT and Co., Apothecaries and chemists, 7, Rue de la Feuillade, Paris. According to the certificates of the physicians of the Paris Hospitals, detailed in the prospectus, and with the approbation of several Academies, this Syrup is employed with the greatest success in cases of Cod-liver Oil, to which it is decidedly superior. It cures diseases of the chest, scrofula, lymphatic disorders, green sickness, muscular atony, and loss of appetite; it regenerates the constitution by purifying the Blood, and is, in a word the most powerful depurative known. It never fatigues the stomach and bowels like the iodide of potassium and the iodide of iron, and is administered with the greatest efficacy to young children subject to humours, exhibit action of the glands. Dr. CLEMENTS, of Saint Louis hospital, Paris, recommends it particularly in cutaneous diseases conjointly with the dills which bear his name.

PHOSPHATE OF IRON, Du LERAS, apothecary, doctor of science, 7, Rue de la Feuillade, Paris.—This new ferruginous medicine contains the elements of the bones and blood, and iron in a liquid state. From observations made in the labor hospitals and detailed in the prospectus, it is superior to ferruginous pills, lactate of iron, iron reduced by hydrogen, pills and syrup of the iodide of iron, and cures rapidly, stomach complaints, painful digestion, poverty of the blood, loss of strength and appetite, and the diseases incident to females. It is the best adjunct to Cod-Liver Oil, and the best preserver health in tropical climates.

ELIXIR DE PEPSINE prepared by GRIMAULT and Co., chemists, 7, Rue de la Feuillade, Paris, according to the formula of Dr. CORVISART, knight of the Legion of Honour, physician to H.M. the Emperor of the French. Pepsine is the gastric juice itself, or rather the digestive principle purified, which digests food in the stomach. When from various causes the supply of the digestive fluid is too small, the inevitable consequences are bad digestion, gastrite, gastralgie, inflammation of the mucous coats of the stomach and bowels, heartburn, anæmia, loss of strength, and in females, general derangement. The elixir of Pepsine, which is sanctioned by the approbation of the Paris Academy of Medicine, speedily cures all such diseases, and prevents vomiting during pregnancy.

INTERNAL OR LOCAL NEW CURATIVE AGENT.

MATICO,

GRIMAULT & Co., PARIS.

THIS new remedy is prepared from the leaves of a Peruvian pepper shrub, called Matico, and cures promptly and infallibly without any fear of inflammatory results. REPORTS.

To the Editor of the "Daily Press,"

"Alecia Annie," Batavia,
11th July, 1864.

In Lat. 2.5 N.,
Long 108.25 S.,
22nd July, 1864.

SIR,—I herewith forward you an account of a collision that took took place between the "Alecia Annie" and some vessel name unknown, on the above date and position.

"At about 1 A.M. the officer of the watch reported to me that a vessel was in sight on the lee beam on the port tack, the Alecia Annie at the time was on the Starboard tack; orders were given to light the port side light which was immediately done, the ships at this time being from three to four miles distant from each other; a strong breeze was blowing with a disagreable chop sea, the Alecia Annie heading from S. to S. E. by E. wind about S. S. W. As the ships drew near I could distinctly see the ships foreyard clear to windward of her jibs, with a good night Telescope. Our portlight had been shewn for about 10 minutes, yet there was no notice taken of it, and I was apprehensive we were not seen by any one on board of the other vessel. All hands were called and every thing in readiness for going about, the ships were very near at this time. I ordered the helm to be put down and went into the waist to hail the other vessel to put her helm down also, as she appeared to be coming into our amidship, or in between the fore and mainmast. They must have heard me call out as their vessel luffed up, the strong head sea caused the Alecia Annie to get stern way about half her own length before she came round (this saved the ship and all on board.) The other vessel at the same time struck us carrying away bowsprit, jibboom, head, fore topmast, main top gallant mast and every thing attached there to.

I hailed the vessel to remain by us until we could ascertain the amount of damage done, they did not answer but I heard some one on board call out to the man steering, to put the helm hard up and let her go full again; this was directly after the vessel struck us, The pumps were strictly attended to but I found the vessel was making no water all hands employed at once clearing and cutting away the wreck. Finding the ship so thoroughly disabled bore away for Sarawak all hands during the day securing masts.

The 23rd Sighted Fo. Point the wind becoming very light and the water being smooth under the land, commenced rigging jury bowsprit, fore topmast, getting head sails bent, and securing and slaying the masts.

24th All hands still employed. At about 7 P.M. every thing being pretty well secured we proceeded on our voyage to Singapore or Batavia to get the damages properly repaired.

NOTICE OF REDUCTION OF PASSAGE MONEY.

IN the year 1857 the Directors made a considerable reduction in the Company's rates of Passage Money, which continued in force till 1861.
In that year owing to the extraordinary rise in the Cost and Freight of Coals, and the enhanced rates of all descriptions of Naval Stores, the Directors were reluctantly compelled to return to the rates of Passage Money previously in force.
They are now happy to state that a decrease in the price of Coal and other exp

EXTRACTS.

The Little War in Ashantee.

Sir J. D. Hay is to ask the House of Commons this evening to censure the conduct of the Government in entering upon the Ashantee War. Government is sorry to see the subject revived: We are not sorry to see the subject revived; it is evi- but deplorable as the whole affair is, but deplorable as the whole affair is. dently the more blunder of a subordinate who mistook the amount of digestive capacity confided to him that we do not expect the House will adopt the motion of Sir J. D. Hay, whose feelings are naturally excited by the loss of a brother in this unhappy enterprise. As soon as the news reached this country, Government lost no moment in commencing that the expedition would be peremptorily countermanded and we trust that before this time the survivors are removed from the deleterious influence of the climate which has proved so fatal. Unfortunately such is the nature of the case that nobody can calculate the sacrifice of life which may attend even a week's delay. On the edge of the Gold Coast we possess two or three forts, the chief of which Cape Coast Castle is usually garrisoned by a detachment of three Europeans officers and 250 negro soldiers. Beyond this little fringe of land our settlements, we are happy to say, do not extend; but between these possessions of the British Crown and the powerful Kingdom of Ashantee, in the interior of the country, there intervenes a considerable tract of teriority inhabited by tribes under our protection, and separating us from the dominions of the African King.

The country and climate hardly admit of description in credible terms. It seems scarcely possible that a region which actually contains a population of its own should be fatal to all imported life of brute animals. On the very edge of the sea-shore it is just possible though by no means easy, to preserve Europeans alive, but the least advance into the interior or the slightest exposure to the atmosphere means death. In this part of Africa even the African negro from the West Indies cannot live, but sickens on arriving like the white man, and with not much greater chance of recovery. Cattle will not live and it is necessary therefore to kill themselves inspirited and salt the meat for consumption. Fresh water is unknown at Cape Coast and the element must be distilled for use. Now to this place there were forwarded for the purposes of a certain war a succession of detachments comprising altogether 53 officers and 1,360 men, and though the "war" has never been commenced, nor so much as a single shot fired or a single enemy seen, it is known already that 36 officers and some 400 men are dead, dying, or invalided. That even this list of victims is imperfect is only too probable. But how, it will be asked, could all this ever come about? The answer is that it came about mainly through a lamentable error of judgment on the part of the Colonial Governor, but that a combination of accidents rendered the consequences even more disastrous than usual. The King of Ashantee, barbarous as he is, has sagacity enough to be well affected towards us; that is to say, he is desirous of living in political amity with a Power which his predecessors learnt to fear. Some time ago, however, two fugitives from his dominions took refuge among the Fantees, a tribe inhabiting the country between our settlements and the frontier of Ashantee Proper. It is stated that these runaways were really offenders against justice. They had stolen some gold belonging to the King, and he was therefore entitled, in a manner, to demand their extradition. Considering, however, that the surrender of these fugitives would doubtless have cost them their lives, it would be hard to quarrel with the resolution of the Governor to protect them. He declined when appealed to in the matter, to give them up, and if he had limited his intervention to this proceeding nobody could have blamed him. But the King of Ashantee was unwilling to put up with this refusal, he invaded the country of the Fantees, and though he could not recapture the runaways, he did some mischief to the natives villages, and threatened more. On this Governor Pine communicated with the Colonial-office and obtained a "conditional authority" to make war upon Ashantee, if operations of an offensive character should be found to promise the easiest and cheapest terms of peace. The sequel is told in that shocking story of mistakes, mishaps, and misery which has been brought before the public. First, "the season" was unusually bad even for the deadly coast of Africa. The rains begin generally in May, but this year they began in March and with such violence and severity as had rarely been known. In the middle of the weather, when every plain was a swamp and every thicket was jungle exhaling pestilence and death, the new reinforcements arrived at Cape Coast. They could not be provided with even the forlorn accommodation maintained in the Castle for its ordinary garrison. The place had only shelter and water for its little complement of troops, and the new arrivals had to camp out under canvas, and do as they could for food. Presently some were marched about 100 miles into the interior. On this duty 400 men and 10 officers were despatched, and from this advanced guard the report soon returned that 15 officers and 200 men were dead or ill, and that of the remainder not more than 80 had strength enough to carry their muskets. Of course, this could not go on; but the troops had some stores with them, and it is said to have been thought that a guard must, at any rate, be left there to protect the property. Happily, there will be an end to the whole business as soon as the mail which left this country on the 24th of last month arrives at Cape Coast Castle, but in the meantime the climate has been at its fatal work. All this while, fortunately for us, the King of Ashantee and his army were as invisible as if no such people existed. Our forces never saw nor heard of an enemy, nor, indeed, was it necessary for an enemy's purposes that they should do so. The climate did the King's fighting better than his troops could do it, but it is not so very long ago we found to our cost that even the military power of Ashantee was by no means contemptible. Just forty years since a British Governor who marched against a King of Ashantee was utterly routed with the loss of half his army and his own life. Had any disaster of this kind occurred now, the summary suppression of the war might not have been so practicable. As it is, we have at any rate no military disasters to retrieve, nor any prestige to recover. The King is said to be by no means desirous of a collision with us, and we are told that our "allies," in whose cause we have been so energetic, would far rather have our money than our co-operation. An African village is not an expensive structure, and it is alleged that a sum of £1,000 distributed in compensation for the ravages of war would have left the sufferers more than satisfied, and infinitely better pleased than they are at present. The policy which, in preference to this course, was actually adopted is said to have cost us £1,000 a-day, and cannot, even on the most moderate estimate, be put at less than £12,000 or £14,000 a-month. Well would it be if this were the worst of it, but the loss of money is insignificant compared with the shocking loss of life. If there is a spark of consolation in the affair, it is as summary termination. As soon as the miserable business was fairly brought before the notice of Government it was stamped out without the delay of an hour; but among other notable features of the case, it really seemed a month ago as if not a dozen people in the country, except the relatives of the victims, were so much as aware that an Ashantee war was going on.—Times.

Grant and Lee.

On the whole Grant has succeeded so far in fulfilling his implied promise to fight it out on the line from the Rapidan to Richmond, a line he has consistently followed from the beginning. To say, as a Richmond journal and its echoes say, that he might have landed his army on the Pamunkey instead of moving overland, is simply to say that Lee is a fool. It would be interesting to know how General Grant was to withdraw his army from the Culpepper country, and embark it without the knowledge of General Lee and more interesting to know whether Lee would have remained on Mine Run in quiet contemplation, or would have taken some steps to thwart the Federal plan. As to finally bringing his army into the peninsula, it is only by a license of language that the countries immediately round Richmond can be described as part of the peninsula, but if they be so described then any assailant of Richmond, unless he operate south of the James, must work in the peninsula. Grant's campaign is entirely different from M' Clellan's; it was based on a different principle, and it has been worked out in a different manner. The only likeness is that in the fact that the object in both cases is the same.—Globe.

The Opposition and the Ministry.

It is impossible to doubt or to wonder at the contempt and ridicule which the policy of her Majesty's Ministers has brought upon us. It is impossible to deny that our position in Europe has been lowered our authority shaken to its foundations, our prestige dangerously impaired. Every one expected that we should defend Denmark. one saw that we felt ourselves bound to do so, and Every that if we failed to do so it could only be through fear. Every country in Europe and America heard our promises; every nation in the world was aware of our menaces. That we did not keep those promises, that we did not execute those menaces, simply and solely because our Government was afraid to go to war with Austria and Prussia, is plain to all the world; and the effect of this cowardice has been far more serious than most of us are disposed to acknowledge. It has encouraged the insolence of America; it has earned the contempt of France; it has taught the despotic Powers that they need no longer reckon with England as with a great Power, for if she has the strength she has not the courage of greatness. Two years ago the fear of England was a principal element in the considerations which maintain the peace and uphold the public law of Europe. The fear of England alone prevented France from absorbing Syria. The fear of England alone prevented Russia from taking more material guarantees from Turkey. The fear of England protected Holland against Germany, Sweden against Russia, Portugal against Spain, and helped to protect the left bank of the Rhine from the ambition of the French people. Now it is understood that the fear of England is a chimera. If she dared not fight Germany with Denmark and Sweden for her allies she will under no circumstances fight with France and Russia, whatever alliances may be offered her. If she would not fight for Denmark she will not fight for Portugal. If she would not draw the sword for the father of the Princess of Wales she will not draw it on behalf of King Leopold. Henceforth the strong may do their pleasure and the weak must submit. Henceforth constitutional government exists only by the sufferance of neighbouring despotism; for constitutional England will give it no protection. We have earned a reputation for cowardice and bad faith which will cost manor wars, millions of treasure, and myriads of liveas and this because Lord Russell dared not tell Austria and Prussia that if they crossed the Eider England would send her fleet to the Baltic. If this reputation attached to Whig Governments alone it might not much matter; for the day of Whig Governments is well nigh ended. We doubt very much whether any one who has now reached middle life will live to see another period of Liberal ascendancy. But the Ministers and their organs have laboured hard and not unsuccessfully to attach to the nation at large the stigma which properly belongs to themselves. They tell us that the country was determined not to fight for Denmark; and that, for the same reason, his efforts to bring Germany to terms were paralysed, as Germany had become aware that England was for peace at any price. Of course, if this were so, it would not excuse the Ministers. Their duty was to keep their word or to resign with honour unstained, and leave the shame of a retreat to others. But this is a trifle. That the Ministers are dishonoured no one doubts: is it true that the nation is a partner and accomplice in their dishonour? Is it true that England was craven at heart? Is it true that the Conservative party would have followed the same course as their opponents; would have bragged as loudly, blustered as noisily, and backed out as tamely? Or is it the fact that, now as heretofore, the heart of the nation had been always sound, that if her Majesty had called upon us to defend the honour of her Crown and the dominions of her ally we should have given her the same loyal, unanimous ungrudging support that we have always given to her and to her predecessors when they have appealed to the courage and loyalty of their people? Is it the fact that the Conservative Opposition has watched with impatient indignation the cowardly and treacherous policy of her Majesty's advisers, and chafed with eagerness to give that indignation vent? For our own part we have no distrust either of the nation or of the Conservative party: it is for their representatives in Parliament to speak out, to repudiate the impudent slander, to give the lie to the cowardice which imputes to them its own imbecility and dishonour, and to declare that the Commons of England have no confidence in a Ministry which has lowered the British flag and dragged the honour of England in the dust.—Herald.
